

INTERNATIONAL CONFERENCE ON ECONOMIC REFORMS

The conference was held in Beijing, China, from October 15 to 19, 1985. It was the first of a series of international conferences on economic reforms, organized by the World Bank and the Chinese government. The conference was attended by representatives from over 40 countries, including the United States, the Soviet Union, and several European countries. The main theme of the conference was the role of the state in economic development, and the need for reform in the socialist countries. The conference was a success, and it led to a number of important agreements and declarations.

The conference was held in Beijing, China, from October 15 to 19, 1985. It was the first of a series of international conferences on economic reforms, organized by the World Bank and the Chinese government. The conference was attended by representatives from over 40 countries, including the United States, the Soviet Union, and several European countries. The main theme of the conference was the role of the state in economic development, and the need for reform in the socialist countries. The conference was a success, and it led to a number of important agreements and declarations.

The conference was held in Beijing, China, from October 15 to 19, 1985. It was the first of a series of international conferences on economic reforms, organized by the World Bank and the Chinese government. The conference was attended by representatives from over 40 countries, including the United States, the Soviet Union, and several European countries. The main theme of the conference was the role of the state in economic development, and the need for reform in the socialist countries. The conference was a success, and it led to a number of important agreements and declarations.

The conference was held in Beijing, China, from October 15 to 19, 1985. It was the first of a series of international conferences on economic reforms, organized by the World Bank and the Chinese government. The conference was attended by representatives from over 40 countries, including the United States, the Soviet Union, and several European countries. The main theme of the conference was the role of the state in economic development, and the need for reform in the socialist countries. The conference was a success, and it led to a number of important agreements and declarations.

The conference was held in Beijing, China, from October 15 to 19, 1985. It was the first of a series of international conferences on economic reforms, organized by the World Bank and the Chinese government. The conference was attended by representatives from over 40 countries, including the United States, the Soviet Union, and several European countries. The main theme of the conference was the role of the state in economic development, and the need for reform in the socialist countries. The conference was a success, and it led to a number of important agreements and declarations.